

Sponsoring a Long Island Business Development Council event provides a unique opportunity to discuss the economy and future of Long Island with bankers, real estate brokers, builders, developers and utilities, as well as leaders from universities, law firms, accountants, engineering firms and many others. Members of the Council include prominent government officials from Nassau and Suffolk counties, and county, town and village Industrial Development and Economic Development agencies.

Meetings feature networking and dinner, with elected officials, special guests and industry experts as well as business and organization thought leaders speaking on timely topics such as economic development, financing, smart growth and more.
